Grown at an altitude of 200-300 metres above sea level, Château Julia's Agiorgitiko is aged for 12 months in a combination of 500 litre barrels, casks and concrete tanks giving a wine filled with lovely black cherry fruit underscored by smoky notes, rich and intense, mouth-filling and delicious.

Tasting Notes

The wonderfully named region of Drama lies in north-eastern Greece, in the Macedonia and Thrace region, and is home to the Château Julia collection of wines. Made from indigenous grapes, these are wines which really have a sense of place, a terroir of mountains, underground springs and long, dry, sunny but cool summers. Our good friend Florent Dumeau consults here (you will have heard his name in connection with Aristea, Clos Cantenac and Château Séraphine).
